These lamps, made from leaves, are an exciting choice for an eco friendly gift for yourself or a friend. They are a treat for the eyes, come in pleasing, playful colors and shapes and cast a soft, warm glow in any room. They are available in many sizes, from the crazy crawling gecko to the modern 6 foot wave or the impressive giant bamboo and cocoa leaf corner lamp. Our fantastic selection appeals to everyone from students to grandparents. Stop by and see the lights that are the talk of the town on Pearl Street!

Fair trade certified Along with quality wages, the lighting company provides their workers with free room and board, meaning the artisans have more money with which to support their families.

Earth and artisan-friendly This is great looking lighting that we can feel good about buying. Sustainability means meeting the needs of today without compromising a better tomorrow. In environmental terms, the company and its artisans are constantly working towards the goal of a zero carbon foot print, doing their part to combat global climate change. The lamps highlight renewable materials featuring cocoa leaves, abaca rope, nito vine, and durian fruit fiber. The unique lamp shades are built using a “fossilization” process. Fossilization is the process of drying leaves and hand-rubbing the chlorophyll off of the leaf so only the leaf's skeleton remains. The leaf is then stained in organic dyes. Natural leaves absorb dye differently, so each lamp has leaves with different hues and shades, sometimes even within the same leaf.

Who says Eco can't be fun?

The wow factor These lamps impress and delight. They have the right quality, methods and vibe. With a wide range of affordable designs, sizes and prices, they make a great gift for everyone on your shopping list.
